Sino ships never left shoal, says military

By Denis E. Pechter

CHINESE fishing vessels have not left the lagoons of Scarborough Shoal and Chinese government ships continue to patrol the vicinity of the disputed, resource-rich area in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea).

On Monday afternoon, after Foreign Secretary Albert del Rosario announced that there were no more Chinese fishing boats in the shoal's lagoon, a Philippine Navy reconnaissance plane spotted 23 Chinese fishing boats—six large vessels and 17 dinghies—in the lagoon.

The Navy plane also spotted five large Chinese government ships—three China Maritime Surveillance ships and two Fisheries Law Enforcement Command ships—outside the lagoon.

China warns PH vs 1st school on Pag-asa

By Jerry E. Espinosa

CHINA has warned the Philippines against opening a public kindergarten school on Pag-asa Island off Palawan province.

Hong Lei, a Chinese foreign ministry spokesman, told a press briefing on Monday in Beijing that China "opposes any illegal activity that may infringe on China's sovereignty" according to the state-run Xinhua News Agency.

Manila should "refrain from taking any measure that will complicate and exacerbate the current situation and affect peace and stability in the South China Sea," Hong said.

He insisted that China had "indisputable sovereignty" over the Spratly chain of islands and its surrounding waters.

Tax cheat no-show at sentencing

By Leah S. Savarits

(CNN) The federal government's tax collector failed to show up at her sentencing for tax evasion at the Court of the Appellate (CA) on Monday, June 27, 2012, according to court records and documents, which prompted the court to issue the proceedings of judgment against her.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue filed the charges against Kinsman for her failure to file income tax returns for 2005 and 2006.

The IRS said she had made a substantial amount of money as a contractor of Kinsman Living Products.

US grant to fund Samar road network

By Joey Guadalupe
Inquirer Staff Writer

TACLOBAN CITY—The government will start in September the construction of a $214-million 220-kilometer road network in Samar that will draw funds from the US government under a grant that the Philippines became qualified to receive by meeting goals set by the Millennium Challenge Corp. (MCC).

The Samar road network will serve nine towns and a city in two provinces on the island—Samar and Eastern Samar—according to the project engineer, Ricardo Alarcon. Alarcon said the road network, which falls under the two-year National Roads Development Project 2002-03, will start in September and be completed in May 2005, about a month before President Arroyo ends his first term.

The project is being funded by MCC and involves the construction of new roads and bridges. Alarcon said the road network would help improve the economy of Samar, one of the country's most impoverished areas, and the lives of its people.

Improved area
"There is one of the poorest provinces in the country but with these roads and bridges, we expect better and economic to improve," Alarcon said.

"There will be a better status of goods and services," he added.

The road project, he said, has not been finished on schedule on roads already for it will have to be started in the US government.

If that happens, he said, the Philippine government would have to continue financing the unfinished portion of the project.

Alarcon, however, expected completion of the project will be finished on time.

"Our only problem is the weather. It is not raining in Tacloban, but it is raining in Samar. The project will be delayed," Alarcon said.

The road project is broken-up into four phases from Arroyo said. Phase 1 is the road network, Phase 2 is the road network, Phase 3 is the road network, and Phase 4 is the road network.

Package 1
Building for package 1 is set on July 15 and will require 24 km of road. Package 2 is set on July 15 and will require 24 km of road. Package 3 is set on July 15 and will require 24 km of road. Package 4 is set on July 15 and will require 24 km of road.

Francis Balino said the ship that hit the fishing boat, the 803, John, had markings on its stern that read "Hong Kong," something similar to markings he said, were markings similar to markings on sailing ships, which could be Chinese characters.

The Philippine Coast Guard on Monday said that its investigation found that only one foreign vessel passed through the area where the accident happened and it was the Chinese flag-registered, 175-ton boat carrier MV Shuang Shuonan.

Unlikely to dispute

Hong Kong is a special administrative region, said the Philippine Coast Guard, so it is unlikely to dispute with Sino vessels published on Monday that said the offending vessel was a Chinese ship.

The accident happened just as China and the Philippines were trying to find a diplomatic solution to their dispute over Scarborough Shoal in the West Philippine Sea.

Defense Secretary Arroyo said that the incident was not related to the territorial dispute between China and the Philippines in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea).

On Monday, President Aquino said the government was not seeking information for the accident while the investigation was ongoing.

Go easy on the blame game, solon tells officials

By Christian E. Rogers

SEN. EDUARDO Angara yesterday cautioned against prematurely blaming China for the maritime accident in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea) that left a 50-year-old Filipino fisherman dead and four others injured.

"Whether a Chinese vessel was responsible, Sen. Gringo (R-Mindanao) said the incident showed that the dispute over the Scarborough Shoal was a "global issue" and, as such, the United States and members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) should be on board in negotiations.

Hong Kong vessel

"We should first verify if China was indeed responsible for this incident to avoid inflicting regional tensions which could dampen our efforts to resolve the issue diplomatically," Angara, vice president of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, said in a statement.

On Monday, the Philippine Coast Guard said a Hong Kong-registered commercial vessel was the one that struck a Philippine fishing boat off Scarborough Shoal.

"Wherever is accountable for the death of the Filipino fisherman must be held liable," Angara said. "Our cabinet will strongly urge China, to hold us in our own courts," he said.

"Scarborough is 'our sea,' we must not give up on the possibility of resolving this issue through dialogue and other means we are involved in," he pointed out, without specifying our country's foreign policy.

Position of strength

He said the Philippines should "negotiate from a position of strength" over the Scarborough dispute by tapping its economic and security allies such as South-East Asia countries and the United States.

He said the Philippines could not negotiate China "on its own."

"We negotiate calmly but we assert the Chinese—don't negotiate alone," he said. "We must be on the street. That we would be in a position to negotiate with China."

After 21 years... the city in the forest is now the country's global eco-tourism city

21st It's more fun in Puerto Princesa

Pista Y Ang Cagueban

(Feast of the Forest)

FUELED BY Pres. Noynoy Aquino's National Greening Program, this year's Pista Y Ang Cagueban celebration in Puerto Princesa City aims to contribute in no small way to the president's vision in planting 1.8 billion trees covering 1.8 million hectares by 2016.

More than two decades ago, Puerto Princesa's natural resources were threatened by man's wanton hunt for personal gain, degradation, poisoned water system and extinction, and it took one man with unwavering drive for environmental protection to lead this way to regain its lost glory, Mayor Edward S. Hagdeborn.

It took 21 years for this man to rally the people of Puerto Princesa into actively participating and committing themselves to the noble cause of preserving, protecting and restoring what was left of the city's natural resources.

When Puerto Princesa City Mayor Edward S. Hagdeborn took over the helm of the city as the first non-Puerto Princesa born mayor, he was also the first to take the lead in protecting and conserving the environment and rehabilitating the ravaged natural resources of the city and to establish it into a global eco-tourism city.

Under the leadership of Mayor Hagdeborn and the unwavering support of First Lady Ellen M. Hagdeborn, Puerto Princesa has been at the forefront of bringing to the world the importance of environmental protection, and sustainable development must go hand in hand.

Through innovation and pioneering initiatives in saving and nurturing the environment and striving a balance in the utilization and propagation of its land, water and coastal resources through strategic, sustainable development policy, Puerto Princesa had earned its place in the global map.

PPUR "Global Jewel" of N7WN

The year's Pista Y Ang Cagueban marks the 21st year that Puerto Princesa City holds this unique feast celebration with musical performances and pageantry where more than 2 million trees have been successfully replanted, establishing over 200 hectares of airport forest cover of Barangays Ibaan and Sta. Laureta.

The 3rd Pista Y Ang Cagueban was celebrated on June 19th, it was on the same year that the United Nations declared June as environment month.

What started as a customary event during the first few years of Pista Y Ang Cagueban, aimed to be a more colorful, exciting and widely participated feast celebration under the leadership of Puerto Princesa City Mayor Edward S. Hagdeborn.

The past few decades of carry-on to the environment has become a win at the people of Puerto Princesa. It has been institutionalized in every language and has since established programs with various sectors - from the grassroots to the business groups, to the local government and to another, to create leaders to create-oriented groups, to even local and foreign tourists.

More than the young and young, it's a family celebration. Pista Y Ang Cagueban has successfully facilitated the region into an active environment and has created a new consciousness towards protecting and conserving nature among the people.

The year's Pista Y Ang Cagueban celebration comes at the heels of recent recognition heaped upon Puerto Princesa City because of the news that the Puerto Princesa Underground River (PPUR) has been declared as the "Global Jewel" of the new travel wonder in the world, it has been more visible than it was in the past.

Puerto Princesa Underground River is the longest karst cave in the world. Spanning 8.2 kilometers of karst cave system, winding through a lush forest, it is one of the most beautiful, mysterious and magnificent.

A natural World Heritage site and Puerto Princesa City's premier eco-tourism destination, it was also selected in the UNESCO World Heritage Site list for its outstanding value and ecological significance.

PPUR's N7WN victory has opened up the possibility of tourism boost in the country.

Turkey seeks Nato help after Syria downs jet

ANKARA—Turkey is to demand backing from its Nato allies on Thursday as a special meeting called after Syrian troops shot down a Turkish warplane last week in an incident Damascus said was self-defense but which Ankara branded an "act of aggression."

It is only the second time in more than 60 years history that a war-torn nation under fire has been named under Article 4 of the charter which provides that member states whose a member state faces an armed attack, will defend it together or in security council deliberations.

Turkey rejected assistance from Damascus, but it has been said on several occasions that it is not in the 14-let as it flows into Syria's west coast to the coast on Friday.

In a letter to the UN Security Council, Turkey's ambassador to the UN said that the Syrian air force shot down a Turkish F-4 Phantom II fighter jet on Friday. Turkey said the jet was shot down by Syrian forces in the north of the country. Turkey said the jet was shot down by Syrian forces in the north of the country.

European Union foreign ministers met on Monday for the first time since the jet was shot down. They said they would discuss the situation.

"Military intervention in Syria is out of the question," said German Foreign Minister Guido Westerwelle.

After a seven-hour Turkish Council meeting in which it was decided that a detailed report will be sent to the UN Security Council, Turkey said it would make an announcement on Syria on Thursday.

Turkey's description of the incident as an act of self-defense, though, was not enough to win support from a "majority of the council," some leaders in Turkey said.

The plane disappeared and was "recovered" by Syrian forces. During at 200 meters altitude and about 100 km from the border, the Syrian jet was shot down by Syrian forces, said Syrian Foreign Minister spokesman Ali Babacan.

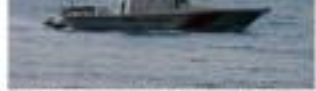

It is a serious case, no doubt.

"We had to react immediately in view of the plane was shot down. We would have shot it down," said Babacan. "The Syrian jet was not an act of defense or self-defense. It was an act of aggression. We had to react immediately in view of the plane was shot down. We would have shot it down."

Gov't spending up 13.1%, revenues gain 11%

By Rosal W. Domingo

THE NATIONAL government posted a budget deficit of P19.9 billion in May as the growth of expenses outpaced that of revenues, according to the Bureau of the Treasury.

The five-month deficit was, however, less than twice the P24.54 billion recorded in the same period of 2011.

January-May expenses reached P66.41 billion, while revenues totaled P46.41 billion for the first half but 17.1 percent higher year-over-year.

Budget Secretary Florencio B. Aldeguer said spending continued to speed up, particularly driven by maintenance activities for the first half but 17.1 percent higher year-over-year.

St. Luke's opens dedicated heart unit for women

According to the Department of Health (DOH), heart disease is the number one cause of female deaths in the Philippines, with vascular disease ranked second. This makes women in the country today most likely to die of cardiovascular diseases (CVD) from other common illnesses such as diabetes, pneumonia, and tuberculosis. Meanwhile, the American Heart Association (AHA) also says that coronary heart disease is the number one single killer of women aged over 35.

Unfortunately, this reality is not widely known to many women as reported by 'Project EOL: Evaluation of Knowledge, Attitudes and Practices of Filipino Women on Cardiovascular Disease and Risk Factors in Metro Manila' (Reyes, et. al.), a study conducted under the Council on Women's Cardiovascular Health of the Philippine Heart Association (PHA). According to the study, most women in the Philippines think they will most likely die of cancer than of cardiovascular disease. This is not so different from AHA findings that only 52% of women view heart disease as a health threat.

In order to help raise awareness and reduce cardiovascular risk among women in the Philippines, the Heart Institute of St. Luke's Medical Center-Global City (SLMC-GC) recently opened a unit dedicated to women and heart disease. The Women's Heart Health Unit (WHHU) serves as a unique venue for women to seek and receive education and information about cardiovascular risks, as well as avail of CV risk assessment and consults.

The WHHU is manned six days a week by 23 top female cardiologists who are professionally trained in various subspecialties in cardiology including vascular medicine, electrophysiology, cardiac intensive care, cardiovascular rehabilitation, and echocardiography, among others. It is headed by interventional cardiologist Dr. Maria Adelaida M. Ibarra-Dy who is also a member of the Council on Women's Cardiovascular Health of the PHA.

'Women present symptoms of CVD differently from the way men do. It is important for women to recognize their cardiovascular risk profile and get treatment quickly at the first sign of distress,' says Dr. Ibarra-Dy. 'At SLMC-GC, we will help women determine if they are at risk of a heart attack or coronary artery disease. Because of their busy lifestyles, they may tend to ignore certain symptoms which may include unusual fatigue, inability to sleep, shortness of breath, indigestion and anxiety, which may be vague manifestations of an underlying coronary problem. When it comes to health, they usually prioritize the needs of their loved ones before their own. We are here to help them understand these symptoms better and provide treatment as early as possible,' she adds.

Additionally, WHHU will also serve as the first research hub for women and cardiovascular diseases in the country. Information gathered by the cardiologists will help advance the knowledge about the incidence of CVD among women. The unit will also organize layons, seminars and workshops on different topics relating to women's interests and cardiovascular concerns.

The Women's Heart Health Unit is located at the Heart Institute, 2F St. Luke's Medical Center - Global City, Bonifacio Global City, Taguig City. It is open Monday - Friday from 9AM to 5PM and Saturday at 9AM to 3PM. For inquiries call (02) 789-7700 ext. 3021/3030.

It's about time someone paid attention to the heart of a woman.

Many people think heart disease is a male problem, but it is the leading killer of women worldwide.*

Car-proofing your kids

By Joanna Lopez-Ramos

LAST year, a letter from a male reader asked me how to teach his daughter to drive without causing his parents' risk. What caught my attention was his fear of going into the driving school thinking that his daughter might be misused by the instructor. Now that I have an adolescent son, I am starting to think about how parents have to teach their previous offspring to spread their wings and start driving. How to make sure that drive responsibly not only in public roads, not using bumps or ditches, not drinking and driving, not getting caught, etc., are just some of the heart that keeps us awake at night when they start looking at asking for the car keys.

Learning how to drive is probably one of the most important lessons parents can teach their children. Having them on a totally wicked, taught from on wheels, is parents, we want to give the best possible growing up experience for our kids, which of course includes being able to drive. ## Cavite celebrates ISO certification, first in the Philippines

THE CAVITE Provincial Government headed by Governor Jovito Benitez celebrated the attainment of ISO 9001:2004 certification, making it the first ISO-certified province in the Philippines.

The province adopted the principle of achieving a quality management system and started its campaign for

ISO certification last year prior while technical preparations were formally initiated in February 2012 with the launching of the provincial government's quality policy, signifying the start of the ISO implementation.

Benefit of the certification are the four core offices of the provincial government including the Treasury, Regis-tration's Office, Transportation and Logistics and the Office of the Provincial Governor together with their support offices: Human Resource Management Office, Information Technology Division and the General Services Office.

The certifying body composed of Anglo Japanese American (AJA) Registrar granted the Certificate of Acco-reditation to the Provincial Government after finding no single major non-conformity during the several stages of the external audit. Prior to this, the provincial ISO review team conducted three quality internal audits to assess the preparedness of the subject offices followed by rigid management review meetings for corrective actions at several points.

ISO certification process usually takes around six to eight months to first with the declaration and final work of the ISO certification and the cooperation of the entire workforce, the provincial government achieved the much sought-after certification 27 days ahead of schedule.

When children bully adults

The case of 68-year-old bus monitor Karen Klein brought to light a rarely discussed aspect of bullying—children tormenting adults

By Pam Pastor

IT WAS a video that got the attention of people all over the world.

The 18-minute YouTube clip, which was shot last week, shows a group of young teenagers taunting, ridiculing, verbally abusing and harassing their elderly bus monitor as a school bus in Greer, New York.

The kids were cruel and ruthless. "Go get your pants on, he," they said over and over again. "Go your pants back on, I can't stand looking at your pants." "This f---ing bus, look at all this shit right here." "Do you have herpes?" "What's your address so I can give all over your door?" "It's a stupid bus so the woman, my little would f---ing go through the bus, because it's a stupid f---ing bus."

The victim, 68-year-old Karen Klein, has received an outpouring of love and support from people who were shocked and outraged by the bullying. They have sent her cash, flowers, e-mails, letters. The online bullying.com, which originally posted the video, has given Karen a variation, has received more $420,000 from close to 10,000 donors from all over the world. Karen has also been offered free trips to Hawaii and Disneyland, a cruise and a new car.

For the induction of the officers and board members of Green Club Mahjong, of which Maymay is now president, the choice a garden party in June theme. The place was a burst of vibrant colors. The ushers and servers were dressed with huge bouquets of flowers.

The methods buffet was a cornucopia of assorted delights laid out on Emily Barakat's table. Glazed ribs, steaks, cheeses were juxtaposed with scrumptious food, some of which displayed on crystal platters. The dishes themselves became the décor. Color-themed salads were presented in large glass containers - blueberry with leafy greens and red cabbage dyed in blueberry; Israeli couscous with peas, artichokes and garbanzo beans; salmon with orange, green, broccoli; red sprouts with sugar peas, cranberry, snowpeas and basil; and last but not least orange and squash.

Layered slices of fish, sautéed prawns, sugar beans and herbs gave vegetarians a high. Crunchy lobster tails laid on a bed of small shrimp and sautéed herbs.

The roach eggs were hard-boiled quail eggs, wrapped in beer, who, common instead of the usual sausage, then coated with two shells, broccoli and whole wheat crumbs and deep-fried. Baby halibut legs were prepared in the Liachonensis style—sour side or cloudy smoked. Kalifornia, which means head first, is also prepared some with the baked chorizo. It baked like a casserole swimming with cheese. As if it weren't enough, there were smoked salmon with quailing rose and ham tushie with shrimp English sausage.

The sticky softie pudding was dripping with fresh custard cream.

Some flowers speckled with white, metallic dust. The chocolate tone with a powder of shagreen on each layer was covered in glaze. The peacocks was done in amber and bronze, the orange layered cake was cooked in acid.

Lace numbers covered the tables. The plates were decorated with ornate designs that mimicked the lace patterns but government censors provided a stark contrast to them. Each plate was adorned with a thin ring of M&M's with a message. They not only added color but babies could entertain

Thinner, lighter, and said to be better

Samsung launches Series 9, the most portable of 15-inch notebooks

SAMSUNG'S 15-inch Series 9 Slim is not just a notebook.

By Alex N. Vergara

THE PENINSULA MANILAS Rigodon Ballroom is taken over by a sea of excitement hours before the launch of Samsung's Series 9, touted as the thinnest (14.9 mm) and lightest (1.58 kg) 15-inch notebook in its category.

The excitement was understandable. Just days before, Apple introduced its latest MacBook Pro, which is supposedly the lightest and thinnest MacBook Pro at 6.4 pounds and 17 inches.

But Eric Sula, Samsung's business unit director for IT, said the Korean brand has outdone Apple. "Ours is definitely thinner and lighter than theirs," he said.

In addition, Samsung is selling its new product at an introductory price of P79,999.

Sula earlier dismissed pre-chance of local sales of IT products.

Based on his report, Samsung is the undisputed leader in both smartphones and PC computers in the Philippines, according to documents in just one year.

"Everybody was surprised," Sula said. "Our competitors and dealers didn't know we would grow that fast."

He attributes Samsung's success to its dealers who push the brand because it offers "superior" products.

"Our dealers and customers agree on the superiority of our products in terms of quality," said Sula. "The main reason for this is we have our own factory. Whereas our competitors subcontract and source their components from the cheapest sources, we build our own computer in China. Samsung also builds its own components."

For those in a tight budget, particularly students and self-employed professionals, the brand offers the Samsung 12-inch Series 5 Slim. At P59,900 a unit, it's a cheaper and more handy alternative to most laptops on the market. Unlike the Series 9, which comes initially in matte silver, the Series 5 is in hot pink and marble brown.

The small but powerful Series 3 runs on AMD's low-voltage A6 CPU, which enables it to match "performance with great graphics" featuring 16GB of class-leading graphics.

Apart from the quality of its products, Samsung hopes its future success on the power of "convergence," a win-win development for the brand and its growing market. Convergence refers to the way devices work together seamlessly to raise the value and functionality of these devices as they work in one "ecosystem."

In business to come, Samsung set up two display stations consisting of two easy-to-use connected tablets—from laptops

Pacita Abad's Boston and Batanes

The Ivatan stone houses prove that heritage conservation can be done—with the right governance

By Winona A. Pineda
Guest House

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS—Pacita Abad, the internationally known artist from Batanes, runs in Boston with husband Jack Quinsay what are called studios for the summer. But first, Pacita and my wife Marlene, schoolmates at the University of the Philippines, had a lot of catching up to do.

Pacita testified that so long as a week and would suffice. By when in Boston, we did what people in Batanes do: a walking tour of Boston Common, a side trip to the museum, and, of course, an obligation to go to the Kennedy Library, which was a delightful surprise for a batanense like me. By this time, Pacita had visited a room in the art world with Batanes influence for whenever her ex-husband's book-keeping company assigned him to Asia and Africa. And she was right: we had a lot of catching up to do. But "Batanes" in the world Pacific might be, her thoughts always turned to her Ivatan topic: batanes people of Batanes.

I had been in Batanes once, and had a slight in taking pictures of the Ivatan stone houses. There were also Pacita's Ivatan spirit, especially their protection and preservation of historical sites. We would have been glad to know that it is happening now: the Ivatan stone houses have been designated cultural heritage sites.

Rising from the rubble

It is epidemic and natural disaster were not enough to destroy a historic 11-story multi-story structure, the remains of Batanes, south of Linao near the southern Chinese border, on July 26, 2009.

Many of its residents had been stone houses since the 19th century.

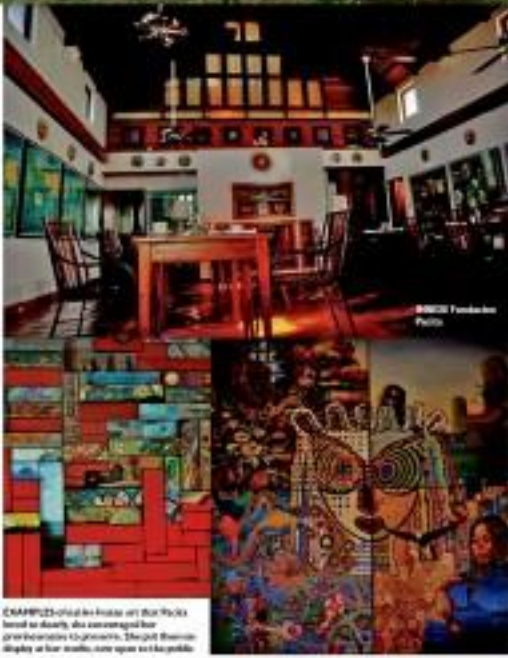

It is a demonstration of how the Ivatan spirit can literally rise from the rubble, but they say: Pacita's "Batanes" Abad, Batanes' brother took the opportunity to restore, as the University of the Philippines School of Architecture to rebuild the remains stone houses that were rising enough to withstand epidemic, but not no disaster.

That began a labor of love by a group of enterprising students who are in the art, but a chance to also study Ivatan architecture up close and personal. Many houses were rebuilt from the ground up, literally stone by stone.

But the initiative took more than 100,000 dollars. The students were found that rebuilding the houses was the only way. Mobilizing the local government, political will and increasing resident enthusiasm would take more than 100,000 dollars.

Governance lessons

That was both an experiment in local government management that was previous al recently as a community of the University of the Philippines School of Architecture, the University of the Philippines School of Architecture, the University of the Philippines School of Architecture, the University of the Philippines School of Architecture.

The two-story building was constructed as a living example of how local government initiatives can be financed by public political will for urban renewal and conservation.

The workshop was a joint project of the U-M's School of Public Policy and Government, the Harvard Institute of Local Government, and U-M's Frank-Rising efforts were successful. The batanense efforts and graduate students were to visit Singapore to look at urban development projects considered state of the art. The joint project was funded by architect's Harvard Club of U-M and Harvard's Harvard Club of U-M.

Why this luxury hotel is drawing intriguing curiosity in HK

Its design blends natural materials, original sculpture, perfectly proportioned spaces to create the feel of a modern Asian home. And—it is 'paperless,' with WiFi in the car

By Hojo Oliveira-Gu
Guest Editor

A PHOENIX/2012 The Upper House in Hong Kong, every through a more... (The text is partially obscured and difficult to read in the original image.)

The hotel has 117 guestrooms, each designed to provide a sense of modern luxury. The contemporary monochromatic design features natural fabric, stone, glass, lacquer and lacquered paper panels. All rooms are presented in two color schemes: "Sunset," with solid red flooring, bamboo timber and blue upholstery, and "Golden," featuring green upholstery, lime and bamboo upholstery and timber.

Natural materials, original sculptures in minimalist and perfectly proportioned spaces are integrated to create a sophisticated and modern "Asian-infused" aesthetic.

"With an intention to create a small luxury hotel environment of a private residence, I have purposely created a sense of simplicity throughout the design and architecture of the hotel," said Andre Ho, the interior designer.

The standard room is 75 sq ft, by its design, a luxury in its own right. The room is fully equipped with all the amenities of a 55 sq ft room. The planning is open, but discreet. The bathroom is partitioned, at 30 sq ft, is open but has with an elegantly angled wall partitioned so that one can directly go about looking outwards. The feeling of being on the edge is very modern and open but with an "Asian sense of privacy."

Every room has panoramic views of the Hong Kong harbor at all times.

Highlighting

The highlight is Level 45, which houses, at the architecturally intriguing Sky Bridge, designed with a double glass, a 42-meter-high atrium, the Sky Bridge leads to the Sky Lounge and the signature restaurant, the Café Sky Deck.

The room and meeting Sky Lounge, with its minimalist design, offers drinks and cocktails throughout the day, but more and more, it is a place of great art and natural beauty, the room is more high ceiling.

On the floor below, a 200-meter glass with overlooking Victoria Harbor, makes the hotel a children's dream (see page 10 of Hong Kong).

The main dining room, which occupies nearly 300, offers spectacular panoramic views, from private dining areas are designed with full view of the open kitchen, a private room for 12 is available for exclusive business event dining.

The bar and lounge, meeting 10, is contemporary and vibrant. The vibrant atmosphere is highlighted by a 14-meter-long open bar and equally long bar.

But it's deeply rooted in the heart of the East and West provides a sense of being that is not to be missed. The hotel is carefully designed to provide a sense of being that is not to be missed.

Upon arrival, you are welcomed by a "personal" arrival team. We don't think it is the reception, you can actually check in anywhere in the hotel — your room, the cafe, the lobby.

The one-stop Guest Experience team manages the traditional hotel reception counter, provides services such as concierge, guest relations, and also offering a very personalized service to the hotel's staff.

Designed around, all guests are contacted by a dedicated member of the team who ensures all requirements and preferences are confirmed in time for arrival.

WiFi in the car

The Upper House is aware of the importance in the digital age to keep guests connected and provides complimentary wired and wireless high-speed Internet in guest rooms and public areas.

In keeping with the hotel's philosophy to reduce guests' carbon footprint while maintaining connectivity at all times, the hotel's energy-saving 1,000-Watt hybrid room is equipped with complimentary WiFi network, ideal for business and leisure travelers on the move. This WiFi has undergone comprehensive security tests.

And just when you thought the hotel's best experience was special enough, go into The Lobby. It is the outdoor garden on Level 4. Guests can enjoy outdoor and indoor in both great surroundings, for a relaxing experience in the Hong Kong skyline and at the "Spectacular Living Room" (outdoor space) and Hong Kong is a rare occurrence. ## MVP: Most Valuable Pidol

As seen by another MVP—Manny V. Pangilinan, big boss of TV5, Dolphy's home station

By Report San Diego Jr.

IT'S more than a fringe of fame. Manny V. Pangilinan, chair of TV5, readily admitted that he's a big fan of Comedy King Dolphy.

In an exclusive interview with the Inquirer, Pangilinan, or MVP as he is known in the business world, admitted that he follows Dolphy as closely as his telecommunication company must "every year ago" (when the comedian was found "probably" murdered).

Star-struck

"I was star-struck," Pangilinan admitted. "But Dolphy has a way of making everyone feel comfortable from very business."

Bobby Fernandez, TV5 executive vice president and chief operating officer, announced working with the Comedy King for a TV special. "Between us, he shared secrets from his past. By the end, he was laughing so hard, he was on the verge of tears."

Ray Lapina, the former chair and president and chief executive officer, claimed that he first met Dolphy when the network began a series of dinner meetings that eventually led to the network's launch from ABS-CBN in TV5 two years ago.

"He was the life of the party every time we met," said Lapina, former TV5 head of Entertainment.

"He was always his spirited self, and still strong, at the time," Pangilinan said.

With Lapina, Fernandez and Lapina, Pangilinan visited the Comedy King at the extensive care unit of Makati Medical Center (MMC) on Thursday, sharing the intimate interview he'd been at the Makati Medical Center. Pangilinan and he remained hopeful that Dolphy would overcome his latest health crisis. "He has a strong will to live. He's got a great heart which is not giving him this," said Pangilinan.

A promise

The sitting committee had just finished its second debate at the time of the visit. "We was drinking and out of consciousness," Pangilinan said, "but he was crying his heart to keep his eyes open and listen to us. I promised to take him to Hong Kong when he's better, the love Hong Kong, he wanted to go."

He also stated that Dolphy was the first major star to make the big leap to TV5 under the management. Asked why they signed him up, Pangilinan quipped: "Having our own talent, young or old, here or abroad... who doesn't know Hong Kong?"

Bernie Aguirre, "We all grew up watching his TV shows and movies."

Pangilinan welcomed the fact that he had been watching Dolphy's TV5 shows and all others, those "Hugay" series. PHOTO BY
